

THE SAFE RE-OPENING OF OUR CONSTRUCTION SITES

We wanted to take this opportunity to let you know that, in order to continue our important building projects, we have been able to re-open our construction sites this week. In doing so, as ever, we are making sure that the safety and welfare of our staff, the public and our valued clients and partners remains our priority.

We are doing everything possible to ensure a Coronavirus safe environment and have implemented a number of important measures including:

- risk assessments of all sites
- new guidance for all staff in keeping with best practice and government and public health advice
- clear signage, indicating safe distancing and hygiene rules
- limiting access to sites and guidance for essential deliveries

Similar measures have been applied in our offices where staff are working from home wherever possible.

We are extremely proud of our dedicated workforce who have supported the re-opening of our sites in these very challenging times. Our thanks go out to them and we support them wholeheartedly. They have helped us to recommence our important existing projects such as The Chantry Community Centre in Billericay, the Air Livery Facility at Southend Airport, the Heritage Centre at the Old Shoebury Garrison, Northlands School in Basildon and residential accommodation refurbishment in Woodham Ferrers. We are also able to pursue opportunities for new projects in 2020.

Established in 1958, A. W. Hardy has a proud tradition of quality construction that has improved the lives of people in Essex with our projects in schools, health, residential, ecclesiastical and commercial sectors. The company remains on a firm footing and we are confident we can meet the challenges posed by Covid 19 and serve the community for many years to come.
